

Aboriginal health is holistic and seeks balance. At the heart of this view is an understanding that all things are connected and in relationship to one another – land, water, air, animals, individuals, families, and communities. Holistic health is a process that demands a broad and inclusive perspective for addressing health issues.

Aboriginal Patient Liaisons

Northern Health is committed to partnering with First Nations and Aboriginal peoples and to building a health system that honours diversity and provides services in a culturally relevant manner.

Aboriginal Patient Liaisons (APL)

APLs are an important part of the health care team. They work to ensure First Nations and Aboriginal patients, clients, residents and their families have access to high quality, culturally appropriate care. They help to bridge the gaps between western and traditional medicine ensuring a holistic health approach.

The Northern Health APL program is implemented in partnership with community agencies, in Prince George, Carrier Sekani Family Services, and in Smithers, the Dze L K'ant Friendship Centre Society.
